SULZER ASKED RYAN TO CALL OFF MURPHY AS WELL AS BARNES

Impeachment Court Reverses Its Ruling of Yesterday and Lets In Full Story of Efforts to Reach Both Bosses.

WANTED DE LANCEY NICOLL TO SEE TAMMANY CHIEF.

Defense Calls Attorney for Late Anthony N. Brady in Effort to Show Sulzer Refused $25,000 Gift.

ALBANY, Oct. 7.—Through the reversal of its ruling of yesterday the High Court of Impeachment to-day permitted Allan A. Ryan, son of Thomas F. Ryan, to be recalled to the stand and tell an amazing story of how William Sulzer made secret efforts to reach Boss William Barnes and Boss Charles F. Murphy in the hope of having the impeachment proceedings called off only a few days before the trial began.

Young Ryan's story was the most remarkable that has been told at the trial. He had testified yesterday that Sulzer asked him to call on Senator Elihu Root and urge him to see Barnes. That statement was ruled out by Chief Judge Cullen, and the ruling was sustained by the Court, the vote being 32 to 18.

This greatly enraged the Republicans, when their anger was increased when they realized that seven Tammany Senators—Patten, Pollock, Sullivan, Simpson, Wagner and Foley had voted to sustain Judge Cullen and virtually in favor of Sulzer. There was at once a demand for a reversal of the ruling, which came to a head as soon as the Court reconvened to-day.

Mr. Ryan was recalled to the stand, and when objection was made, Senator Elton B. Brown, the Republican leader, asked for an executive session. After an hour's debate behind closed doors the court by a vote of 41 to 11, Mr. Ryan refused to interfere, and to use his own words, "I went out in the country and forgot it."

After Ryan left the stand the defense began its counter attack by calling as its first witness Samuel A. Boardley, its New York law firm of Hemmens & Boardley, counsel for the late Anthony N. Brady and for the Gas and Electric interest. They planned to show that Mr. Boardley had tried to give Mr. Sulzer $25,000, which was refused. The Court sustained the point and the story was shut out. The defense had planned to show that although the

PUBLIC WAS DECEIVED OVER SALE OF $2 TICKETS

Some of Them Are Traced by Detectives to Favored Employees in the Corporation Counsel and District-Attorney's Offices.

The New York Baseball Club, through Secretary John B. Foster attempted an explanation to-day of the fact that reserved seat tickets, which had been refused to regular Polo Grounds patrons at the regular price, $2 each, were on sale yesterday by speculators at $18 each and that unreserved $2 grand stand tickets, which were supposed to have been religiously held for the general public, were on sale all over town last night at $6 a ticket.

The explanation is, in effect, that members of the staff of the Corporation Counsel and the District Attorney sold to speculators reserved seats they had bought for $2 each and that the National Commission ordered the club to give $2 unreserved tickets to persons who had been unable to get $2 reserved tickets.

By its very explanation the New York Baseball Club convicts itself of bad faith in respect of the $2 tickets. There were 17,000 of these, and it was known that they would be gone up as fast as they could be pushed through the ticket windows.

BROKE PROMISE TO THE PUBLIC. It had been extensively advertised that every one of the 17,000 tickets would be on sale when the gates were opened this morning. But, in violation of its pledge and promise, the New York Baseball Club released big blocks of them yesterday, and these soon found their way into the general market.

The result was that regular Polo Grounds patrons, who, relying on the statements of the club, got into line early this morning expecting to get good seats found the best seats in the lower tier of the grand stand occupied when they got inside the grounds. The occupants of these seats were men who bought the tickets yesterday afternoon or last night from speculators or who got the tickets direct from the club at the $2 rate.

"SOMETHING MORE" THAN 500 RELEASED. Here was favoritism approaching an insult to the regular patrons of the game, who believed in the announcements of the club. Not one of the $2 tickets should have been released in advance of the sale.

Secretary Foster says something more than 500 $2 seats were released in advance and given to President Elton B. Brown, the Brooklyn club and various minor league managers and owners. He doesn't say what "something more" than 500 means. There are Polo Grounds patrons who honestly believe that thousands of $2 seats were put out yesterday.

The gates were opened at 2:30 o'clock this morning. At 11:29 o'clock while thousands were in line at the $2 windows the supply of seats ran out. In other words the New York Club would have its patrons believe that it took but 1 hour and 25 minutes to admit 16,500 persons to the lower tier of the grand stand. The 16,500 got in all right, but it

Features of the Game at a Glance

Oldring got the first hit of the series, a single to right field. Collins got to Marquard in the same inning for the second hit.

Fletcher got the Giants' first hit, after Shafer and Doyle had flied out.

Bender pitched thirteen balls in his first inning against Marquard's nine.

Strunk was the first strikeout victim of Marquard in the second inning.

Burns, called out on strikes, was Bender's first strikeout victory. Murray got the Giants' second hit off Bender, in the second inning, making the hitting even up to this stage.

Eddie Murphy got the third hit of the game off Marquard in the third inning, a single over Doyle's head.

Doyle brought in the first run of the game in the third when his single scored Merkle from second base.

Collins' second hit off Marquard was a triple in the fourth. Schang's triple in the same inning scored Strunk and Barry, the latter having previously doubled and gave the Athletics a lead of two runs.

In the fourth Burns started off with a double, but got no further, being run down on Herzog's rap to Bender.

Marquard, a bit wild, gave his first base on balls to Collins in the fifth. Baker then got into the game with his home run habit, and sent Collins in ahead.

McCormick, called as a pinch hitter for Marquard in the fifth, made good with a single. This and hits by Merkle and Fletcher gave the Giants three runs, making the game close again and setting the crowd wild.

TWO CONFESS HOLD-UP OF MAN WITH $16,000

STONINGTON, Conn., Oct. 7.—Walter Arnold and Joseph Bussio of Mystic today confessed to the police that they yesterday morning held up and robbed Carl A. Koehn, paymaster of the American Velvet Co., of $16,000 as he was on his way from the bank to the mill with the company payroll. The confession came as the result of a severe warning. Beyond the bare admission of guilt the police were unable to get much information.

After the confession the men who had been arrested at their homes as suspects were formally placed under arrest charged with highway robbery. They will be given a hearing this afternoon. Both are former workers at the mill. Although the two men robbed Koehn of $16,000, they did not realize a cent from the hold-up. Pursued by a crowd, the pair stuffed the money into

NEGRO WHO 'HAD TO KILL' ADMITS TWO MURDERS

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 7.—Barry Harris, a negro, who last night confessed to the murder of Mrs. Rebecca Gay, the Christian Scientist leader of Los Angeles, told detectives today that he also killed Mrs. M. Haskins of Compton, Cal., some time ago, set the Coronado Hotel in Los Angeles on fire and sent poisoned candy to a woman in Los Angeles. Harris told the police he had no reason for the murder of the two women. He claims he was actuated by an uncontrollable desire to kill. The negro was acquitted when tried for the murder of Mrs. Haskins.

BY BOZEMAN BULGER.

(By Special Wire to The Evening World.)

POLO GROUNDS, Oct. 7.—The ninth annual world's series got right down to cases, as the ball player terms it, when at 1:45 o'clock Marquard walked out to warm up for the Giants and Bender took the practice slab for the Athletics. This move was greeted by a great shout from the crowd, which was augmented a minute later when Mathewson stripped off his sweater and moved up alongside the Rube at exactly the same moment that Eddie Plank came over and joined Bender. Thomas caught Plank, while Lapp handled Bender. Wilson took care of Marquard on the Giants' side of the field, while Hartley caught Matty. The fact that Schang and Meyers warmed up at the plate while the two teams were at batting practice, however, made it evident that they would be the catchers in the game.

The heavy clouds and the cold, raw day really decided the pitching selection. It was made to order for the tremendous speed of Rube Marquard and Bender. It was also looked upon as a favorable sign to McGraw, because it would enable him to use Mathewson at Philadelphia to-morrow—a thing that he has decided for some time. All the pitchers took it easy in practice, reserving their real punch for the game.

The umpires' arrangements, which they decided themselves, were Klem behind the bat, Egan on the bases, Rigler in left and Connelly in right field.

Promptly at 2 o'clock the photographers were sent scurrying away and the field was cleared for action.

WALL STREET CAME TO FULL STOP WHEN GAME WAS STARTED

Stagnation overtook the stock market in mid-afternoon when the time came for the championship baseball game. Active speculative operations were suspended, as members of the board who did not go to the game betrayed were interested in the news ticker than in the course of the market. Prices hardly moved more than 1/8 and transactions were few and far between.

FIRST INNING.

Marquard's first offering was a fast, straight ball squarely over the middle of the plate, and Eddie Murphy surprised everybody by going after it; he lifted a high fly that Murray caught without moving from his tracks. The first ball to Oldring was a fast one that cut the plate for a called strike. Marquard then shot over another one, which Collins met squarely on the nose and lined into right field for a beautiful single. Marquard evidently was to depend on his speed entirely and he shot a clean strike over on Collins. So far he had not missed the plate. Then came the play that gave the crowd its
